1) Country summary

A social enterprise is defined by the Swedish Government as an enterprise where the business activity is a means of achieving one or more specific socially beneficial goals, such as reducing exclusion, improving the climate and the environment or contributing to a safer living environment. The common driving force for social enterprises is to create innovative solutions to societal challenges. Their own financial gain is not at the centre.

In Sweden, there are different ways of financing social enterprises, especially social funds. Crowdfunding for social enterprises is quite limited in Sweden, due to the availability of other tools designed for supporting social enterprises, NGOs and social projects.

What is crowdfunding?

Crowdfunding means that a large group of individuals with small sums helps to finance a business, instead of one or a few investors contributing a larger sum. The collection takes place via crowdfunding websites and many times the investors are unknown to the entrepreneur.

How does crowdfunding work?

In short, crowdfunding is based on a specialized website where aspirant entrepreneurs present a business idea and seek financial support from individuals and companies. The website works a bit like a bulletin board where many different business ideas are presented at the same time.

In many cases, the entrepreneur sets an investment goal that must be met for the idea to become a reality.

It is common for the backer to be given the opportunity to pre-order the product against advance payment. In this way, the entrepreneur raises capital to implement the business idea, and the backer receives the product at the first possible opportunity.
